Dear Ms. Davis,

I am a retired New York City high school science teacher, and want to give what the Board of Education calls a developmental lesson on the arguments for God's existence to Columbia students and faculty. Being a Catholic, I first approached the Columbia Catholic Ministry. This resulted in some kind of legal battle that I recently informed Dean Valentini about. I published my ideas about this topic here:

https://www.academia.edu/23340072/WHY_PEOPLE_BELIEVE_GOD_CAUSED_THE_BIG_BANG

I've attached the hand-out I would use is such a lesson. I've also attached the email I sent to Dr. Valentini with a cc to Msgr. Paddack.

Very truly yours,
David Roemer

Dear Brendan,

On March 16, 2016, I sent you an email offering to give Columbia students a lesson/lecture on the arguments for God's existence. You did not respond to the email, and I am concerned that you were scandalized by my email and by Fr. O'Reilly's rejection of my offer. I expressed my concerns to Cardinal Dolan (<http://www.newevangelist.me/styled/>) on March 31, but have not gotten yet from the Archdiocese of New York any assurance that you have not lost your faith. Please give me a call at 347-414-2285 or send me an email.

Very truly yours,
David Roemer

email sent on 3/16/16 Dear Brendan and Kenna,

I am a retired New York City high school science teacher, and want to give the students at Columbia a developmental lesson about the arguments for God's existence. I graduated from Fordham in 1964 and my metaphysics teacher was W. Norris Clarke, S.J.. I was taught that the arguments from "first cause" and "design" made no sense, but that the crowning achievement of metaphysics is the cosmological argument for God's existence. A developmental lesson is not a lecture because the teacher develops the aim of the lesson with the students.

I was shocked to learn recently that a Jesuit professor of metaphysics is promoting the "first cause" argument for God's existence. In October, 2015, I submitted a paper titled, "Why People Think God Caused the Big Bang" to the Review of Metaphysics, which is edited by Elizabeth Shaw. This is a link to the article: <https://drive.google.com/file/d/0BzZLe2IsSc0sZU81ckRvQnhVUIU/view?usp=sharing>

My correspondence with the Catholic Church about this matter is at <http://www.newevangelist.me> ("Rational Arguments for God's Existence: Evangelizing Good and Proselytizing is Bad").

Very truly yours,

David Roemer
