sent 4/1/16: Dear Fr. Coyne,

I took your book (Physics, Philosophy and Theology) out of the Fordham library looking forward to seeing what Catholic philosophers were saying. As soon as I started reading, I realized I had no desire to know more about what Catholic philosophers are saying. I have already formed my ideas and explained them as best I could in writing. I want to discuss them with Catholic philosophers.

As you can see from the attached letter to Cardinal Dolan, my only hope for such a conversation is with college students. I've also attached the hand-out I would give in such a conversation.

email sent 3/29/16 Dear Fr. Coyne,

Thank you for the article. My feeling is that there is a conflict between us but I could not put my finger on it from a quick reading of your article.

I'd like to go to Le Moyne College and give a developmental lesson about the argument's for God's existence to your students and colleagues. I just got the attached letter from The Review of Metaphysics that compliments my article about this topic. The give-and-take of a conversation is more likely to resolve a conflict than reading and writing, in my opinion.

Very truly yours, David Roemer
